Belling the Cat

The Mice had a meeting to figure out how to protect themselves from their enemy, the Cat. They wanted to find a way to know when she was coming so they could run and hide. They were always scared of her claws and barely left their homes day or night.

They talked about many ideas, but none seemed to work. Then, a young Mouse stood up and said: "I have a simple plan that will work. We just need to put a bell around the Cat's neck. When the bell rings, we'll know the Cat is coming."

The Mice were amazed they hadn't thought of this before and started celebrating. But then, an old Mouse stood up and said: "The young Mouse's plan is clever, but let me ask: Who is going to put the bell on the Cat?"

It's easy to suggest an idea, but much harder to actually do it.
