Jack and the Beanstalk

Once upon a time, there was a poor widow who lived in a small cottage with her son, Jack. They had no money left, and the widow had no choice but to send Jack to market to sell their only cow to buy food.

On the way to market, Jack met a man who offered to buy the cow in exchange for a bag of magic beans. Jack, thinking that was a wonderful trade, agreed to the trade and returned home with the bag of magic beans.

When Jack's mother saw the bag of magic beans, she was furious and threw it out of the window into the garden. When they awoke the next morning, they found that a giant beanstalk had grown up to the sky.

Curious, Jack decided to climb the beanstalk to see where it led. When he reached the top, he found himself in a strange land high above the clouds. There, he saw a magnificent castle and decided to explore.

Jack crept into the castle and found a huge room filled with treasures. He also found a giant, who was fast asleep. Jack quickly grabbed a bag of gold coins and made his way back down the beanstalk.

The next day, Jack climbed the beanstalk again and entered the castle. This time, he found a hen that laid golden eggs. He took the hen and climbed back down the beanstalk.

On the third day, Jack climbed the beanstalk one last time and entered the castle. This time, he found a harp that played beautiful music. As he tried to take the harp, it cried out, waking the giant.

The giant chased Jack down the beanstalk, but Jack was too quick for him. He grabbed an axe and chopped down the beanstalk, sending the giant tumbling to the ground.

Jack and his mother were now rich, thanks to the treasures he had found in the castle. They lived happily ever after, never again having to worry about not having enough to eat.
